By Associated Press.

city was quiet today following the lynching last night of Hulea Owens, negro, by a mob who took him from the Miller county jail on the Arkansas side, where he had been following the fatal shooting of R. C. Choate, Arkansas policeman. Owens, who had been arrested Thursday, was trying to escape after having been taken out of the jail by the officer and killed Choate as he attempted to prevent his escape. The negro, suffering from a bullet wound in the face inflicted by Chief of Police Lumsden, died and attempted to drown himself. He was rescued and taken to a hospital. The attitude of a crowd there caused the removal of the negro to the jail.

Negro Rushed to Rockview Today Without Previous Announcement.

Without the usual formality of public announcement of the date of execution, George Stewart, negro, convicted at the March term of criminal court in Uniontown of the murder of Paul Newcomer, in death driver, was removed this morning to the Central Penitentiary at Rockview where he will be electrocuted Monday morning.
No previous notice had been received that the date for the execution had been fixed by the governor. Not until last evening did Sheriff Ira L.
Shaw receive instructions to turn over the condemned man to the State.
Stewart was not informed of his destination when he was taken from jail.
Instead it is said he was told that he was to be taken to the scene of the murder to have some pictures taken. Instead he was whisked to the railroad station and placed aboard a train and started on his way to the death house.

Because of his confession to the murder, in an effort to save his wife and Wilbur Randolph, who were implicated in the crime, no attempt had been made to secure a new trial or stay of execution.

Stewart, before his trial, had professed religion and had confined in the faith since conviction and following sentence of death. In his cell are numerous crude drawings of Biblical characters.

Stewart's wife was sentenced to serve 15 years and Randolph 12 to 22 years in the Western Penitentiary.

Postmaster Collins advises that letters of this character are not admissible to the mails when the contents are known, and further advises that persons who knowingly mail letters containing threats are liable to heavy fines and imprisonment.

MISSING MAN FOUND

William Hays of Bolivar on His Way to Ebensburg at Time.
GREENSBURG, May 20.—After a search of over 24 hours, William Hays, the aged Bolivar man who disappeared Wednesday morning, was located Thursday afternoon when his son, Assemblyman Roy W. Hays, found him on the street in Johnstown.

The aged man said that he had desired to make a business trip to Ebensburg, but that his family had demurred on account of his physical condition. He therefore decided to leave without telling them that he was going.

With almost two weeks having passed since Rev. J. S. Potts, pastor of the New Alexandria Methodist Church, disappeared from his home,
the mystery surrounding the case is as deep as ever.

BUSINESS REVIVAL
IS HERE, STEEL MEN
INFORM PRESIDENT

Shortage of Unskilled Labor Within 90 Days in Some Industrial Fields Held Possibility.
WASHINGTON, May 20.—The business revival foreseen by many government officials as due in the near future,
already is under way, it was declared
at the White House, where reports were made at the steel manufacturers' conference Thursday night of recent material increases in orders. In connection with their discussion of President Harding's suggestion that the 12-hour day be abolished in the steel industry, several manufacturers commented on the shortage of unskilled labor which was already apparent and which, it was predicted, might become a matter of moment if the upward swing of the trade pendulum continued through the next 90 days.

The unemployment in Ohio, Detroit and Chicago apparently had been temporarily solved, Mr. Harding was told, and industry continued up grade.
Agriculture also was reported on the road toward rehabilitation. The most serious complaint, which persists from the agricultural classes, was said to have experienced difficulty in obtaining adequate financing.

President Harding was said to be have a wholesome revival in business and industry was definitely under way
and would continue unless some cross currents were struck.

Confidence is held by President Harding, it was declared, by an administrative spokesman, that the conference Thursday night with steel manufacturers had started a movement which would result in abolition of the 12-hour day.

The confidence was not held in certain labor circles, however. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, issued a statement declaring the meeting was "typical of present day efforts of big business that it should use the White House as a rostrum from which to give the country the impression that people are accustomed to call 'banking'."

Monongahela Most Important
Inland Waterway in Country,
Sponsor of Improvement Holds

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Under the provisions of the amendment to the rivers and harbors bill adopted by the House yesterday whereby the expenditure of $6,240,000 for the improvement of the Monongahela river was approved, locks 3 and 4 will be reconstructed and 7 and 8 improved. The amendment, which was introduced by Representative M. Clyde Kelly, also provides for the erection of a repair plant to be located a short distance above Fairmont, W. Va.

Mr. Kelly, in his argument for the amendment, declared the Monongahela
the most important inland waterway in the country, told the members that last year's shipments totaled 2,000,000 tons and that this particular improvement of the river would mean increased business in the future. Coal, he said, is the principal product shipped, and that while this fuel is gradually being exhausted in the lower portion of the river, there are rich deposits above Brownsville.

"Every ton of ore brought into the Pittsburgh district from the lake region requires a ton of coal," said Mr.
Kelly. "This means that it is necessary to gradually go up the river for coal deposits. An improved waterway from Pittsburgh to Fairmont means increased tonnage. It will be good policy for the government to supply funds for the improvement of the river, which should be navigable for the entire distance, 131 miles."

The amendment of Mr. Kelly has the support of General L. H. Beach of the Army engineers. It is expected that Senator Pepper will champion the cause of the Monongahela when the bill comes before the Senate and will support the Kelly amendment adopted by the House.

slightly warmer Sunday is the non-weather forecast for Western Pennsylvania.

Murder, Arson Increase in Belfast's Religious War*Catholics and Protestants Engage Daily in Reprisal Killings.

By Associated Press.
BELFAST, May 20.—Terrorism in Belfast and its environs is again assuming such proportions that Premier Sir James Craig and his cabinet met this afternoon, presumably to discuss measures for dealing with the renewal outbreak of strife.

At least half a dozen persons have met death at the hands of murder-gangs within the last 24 hours and dozens of others wounded.

Two men today entered the sawmill in the York Street area, inquired the religion of the various workers and shot dead a Catholic, apparently in reprisal for a similar shooting in the case of a Protestant yesterday.

Flames broke out today in the city but if anyone is injured and the
city clerk or health officer is notified,
a wagon will be sent out.

A number of firms and persons have donated the use of their trucks and teams for this purpose. In addition the city equipment will be sent, together with all the garbage company
stock.

The work of May 20 will be impossible when Health Officer George
Holzgi will go over the entire city.
If there are any premises still in a state of winter filth, the city will do the cleaning up and charge the property owner.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NOW
PAST 300-MARK

The Chamber of Commerce campaign committee is now in the process of "mopping up." By the middle of next week the total membership will be fully established and then the organization will be ready to take up its work.

No immediate plans for the future have been made and will not be until the membership drive has been completed. The total enrollment is now over the 300 mark and today between 60 and 75 letters were sent out to prospects who were either away when canvassers called on them or who gave indefinite answers. After a reasonable time to allow replies has passed, the campaign will be considered closed, but the executive committee anticipates a total membership of at least 350.

BALL GAME CANCELLED

Play Unable Because of Wet Grounds
at Fayette Field.
The ball game scheduled for this afternoon between the Harris Hill Independents and the Connellsville Independents was called off because of wet grounds. The rain of the previous days have so soaked the surface that any kind of a ball game today would have been impossible, the management said.

inaugurated by the Chester Kiwanis civic and business organizations. For Leaps Under Subway Express.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Charles B.

under the wheels of a subway express.
Hundreds saw him make his fatal

ber. Hash was said to have lost a

Boy Scouts Are at Work Preliminary
To City Clean-Up

Connellsville's spring clean-up will begin on Monday and continue throughout next week. The Boy Scouts were busy distributing clean-up literature and by swimmers to all parts of the city today and a number of people were taking advantage of the usual Saturday cleaning at their homes to get much rubbish ready for burning on Monday.

The first day of the clean-up has been set aside as burning day and all rubbish which can be destroyed by fire
may be burned on private property.
The city ordinance prohibiting the burning of rubbish within the city limits will be lifted for that day only.

Plans have been completed for the free hauling of debris provided it is placed along the curbs. The hauling will be done in the early morning, beginning Tuesday. Efforts will be made to cover every street in the city but if anyone is injured and the
city clerk or health officer is notified,
a wagon will be sent out.

A number of firms and persons have
donated the use of their trucks and
teams for this purpose. In addition
the city equipment will be sent, together with all the garbage company
stock.

sible when Health Officer George

Teacher Freed
Of Charges Made
By Girl Student

By Associated Press.
PERTH AMBOY, N. J., May 20.—The board of education of Marlborough township, after a trial that continued until early today, acquitted Alvin W.
White, teacher in a grade school at Morgantown, of charges preferred by a number of girls pupils. The charges are said to have resulted from alleged improper remarks relative to pupils rolling down their hose, the remarks
having been related to her parents
by a girl pupil who was expelled from school last month.

One girl, testifying for the teacher,
said she expressed the opinion that
"leg show in school is out of place and I don't want any more of it." The episode took place early in January but nothing was said until after the expulsion of the pupil in April.

White also was alleged to have given the pupils to read a book entitled "Men, Women on Earth," to which parents objected.

DRY NAVY WARS ON RUM-RUNNERS

New Prohibition Fleet Will Operate in Southern Waters.

HARD JOB SET OUT FOR THEM

Must terminate the smuggling of liquor between West Indian ports and the mainland of Florida—Thrilling tales hidden away in the Press of Florida of the Coast Guard—Smugglers Show Heretofore Genius in Methods They Adopt.

Several weeks ago following the partial success that has followed the operations of a few rum chasing launches in Florida waters under command of "Admiral" T. G. Nutt, the authorities having in charge the enforcement of the prohibition laws decided to organize a "navy" which would be directed against the rum runners operating between British and other West Indian ports and the east coast of Florida and southern Georgia, says the New York Times. The proposition was laid before Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. The secretary thereupon directed Commandant Reynolds of the coast guard service to transfer to the prohibition bureau nine modern submarine chasers built for the navy during the war. This will make two squadrons of four ships, leaving the ninth vessel to be used as a fleet flagship.

To date six of the vessels that will operate under the prohibition ensign have been transferred from coast guard to prohibition enforcement jurisdiction.

The coast guard service has nothing whatever to do with the command or the navigation of the Boats Navy. That is a matter entirely under the direction of the prohibition authorities. The "navy" is to be officered and manned by men who are now being enlisted, preference wherever possible being given to former officers and sea men of the navy or the coast guard.

To Stop Rum-Running. Details of the organization of the fleet are withheld by the prohibition office. It may be some weeks before the "navy" is ready for action. Whether or not the fleet will operate as a unit or be scattered along the coast in separate commands is another question that the authorities have so far declined to answer. The opinion is general, however, that the fleet will be largely concentrated in Southern waters for the purpose of terminating the rum-running between West Indian ports and the Florida mainland.

Under the "smuggling" provisions of the customs law the coast guard is charged with the duty of being always on the alert for smugglers and other violators of customs laws and regulations, and "rum smuggling" is no different from other things subject to duty or confiscation.

The coast guard is not a publicity seeking organization and very little gets into print regarding the achievements of the service in enforcing the prohibition amendment. The files in the headquarters of the guard are full of reports—and every one is a story—of the work of the coast guard in the past few months. There is a story of a schooner named "The Witch" which was seized by the coast guard on Sunday by a team in prison. The night in question a launch from the schooner picked its way through the fishing smacks into the harbor and discharged a consignment of whisky. The retail value of which was estimated at $50,000. The launch was in the neighborhood of $50,000.

The coast guard cutter Tampa with nothing much to do was lying in Boston harbor at the time. The story of the rum-runner reached Boston and the customs authorities notified the Tampa and immediately set out to sea. For a day and a night the Tampa zigzagged up and down the Massachusetts coast. The officers took a good description of the schooner. They had her name, and they knew that they had journeyed up from the west coast in the Bahamas. But the schooner had disappeared and not a trace could be had of her since the late dusk of the afternoon she anchored off the coast 48 hours before.

Dawn came and the lookout on the Tampa sighted a two-masted schooner. She was proceeding leisurely to sea. Once, twice, three times the lookout focused his glass on the vessel but he could not make out the name for the very good reason that there was no name where the name should be. The Tampa changed her course and steamed within halting distance of the schooner.

Name Blocked Out. "What have you got on board?" the skipper of the coast guard cutter should through his megaphone. "Nothing but ballast and water ballast; at that," was the prompt reply from the first mate of the schooner.

"What's your name?" demanded the American skipper. "Ah! got none," was the answer. "Then the skipper of the Tampa noticed that something was happening to that part of the bow where the name ought to be. He signalled the engine room and the Tampa steamed in closer and the skipper saw what was the matter. A big piece of burlap had been tacked over the name.

The captain of the schooner decided to make a race for the open sea. The ship was under way before the commander of the Tampa realized what was up. She gathered speed, and the Tampa was after her. All commands to stop were ignored by the schooner. The little six pounder on the forward deck of the Tampa banged away. The skipper of the schooner knew that the next one would not be blank. The schooner slowed down. She came to anchor and was towed into Boston. What was left of the original $75,000 cargo of whisky was seized, so was the ship. The end of the story will come when the United States courts finish the case.

Here is another little story from the coast guard files. It happened a few weeks ago. The place was the Pacific coast near Westport, Wash. The name of the rum runner was The Milk Maid. A fast gasoline launch The Milk Maid was bound from Vancouver, British Columbia for San Francisco, and tucked away in her narrow little compartments was whisky, which subsequently the customs authorities estimated to be worth at prevailing market prices, about $25,000.

Washed Up by Waves. The morning of last June 8 fishermen and coast guard life-savers were surprised to find the coast near Westport for a distance of about two miles strewn with bottles of rye whisky. There was no other wreck age. As the surf beat its way in, it would leave as it receded another bottle or two on the shore. Strange to say most of the bottles were unbroken and the seals that secured the stoppers were intact.

An investigation was promptly set afoot, and after some hours the coast guard men found the answer. It was that a battered and smashed launch had been hurled ashore and against the rocks. In the wreckage was found the bodies of two men who had been the crew of the launch. Subsequent developments proved that the launch when it left Vancouver had on board 184 cases of liquor.

At about the same time as the Westport tragedy there sailed into the harbor of Miami Fla., a schooner called the Witch. She was according to the records in the case about the most in ancient looking craft that ever came to anchor in Florida waters.

The papers of the Witch disclosed that her cargo consisted entirely of rum—1,000 crates of them. Florida is the land of tomatoes but evidently somebody in Nassau, W. I. had an idea there was a tomato shortage in the state, and so the Witch sailed away with a cargo to meet the tomato emergency.

The coast guard cutter Vidette was off Miami as the Witch sailed serenely into the harbor of Miami. The Vidette's skipper was suspicious. He could not exactly understand why so many tomatoes were coming into a state where tomatoes are so plentiful and where they grow the year round. So the skipper investigated and found 14 small flasks of whisky private stock and belonging to the crew of the Witch. The skipper of the Witch murmured: "I told you so, and I wanted that he considered the inspection of his ship anything but a compliment."

The skipper of the Vidette got in touch with the customs authorities and the latter decided to make a second inspection of the Witch.

There are entirely too many tomatoes on that craft, said a customs inspector.

The customs men ransacked the schooner from stem to stern but not a drop of whisky did they find. "It would require a book to tell all the stories hidden away in coast guard files. It is permissible to relate a few of the 'bootleg' adventures in which the coast guard has represented the side of law and order."

$50,000 Worth of Bootleg. Quit recently there appeared off the New England coast a trim two-masted schooner on the Canadian register. With all sails set the schooner logged her way down the coast and in due course arrived off the harbor of the Little New England city famous in history as the place where a few centuries back a vessel was punished by death and sinking on Sunday by a team in prison. The night in question a launch from the schooner picked its way through the fishing smacks into the harbor and discharged a consignment of whisky. The retail value of which was estimated at $50,000. The launch was in the neighborhood of $50,000.

The coast guard cutter Tampa with nothing much to do was lying in Boston harbor at the time. The story of the rum-runner reached Boston and the customs authorities notified the Tampa and immediately set out to sea. For a day and a night the Tampa zigzagged up and down the Massachusetts coast. The officers took a good description of the schooner. They had her name, and they knew that they had journeyed up from the west coast in the Bahamas. But the schooner had disappeared and not a trace could be had of her since the late dusk of the afternoon she anchored off the coast 48 hours before.

Dawn came and the lookout on the Tampa sighted a two-masted schooner. She was proceeding leisurely to sea. Once, twice, three times the lookout focused his glass on the vessel but he could not make out the name for the very good reason that there was no name where the name should be. The Tampa changed her course and steamed within halting distance of the schooner.

Name Blocked Out. "What have you got on board?" the skipper of the coast guard cutter should through his megaphone. "Nothing but ballast and water ballast; at that," was the prompt reply from the first mate of the schooner.

"What's your name?" demanded the American skipper. "Ah! got none," was the answer. "Then the skipper of the Tampa noticed that something was happening to that part of the bow where the name ought to be. He signalled the engine room and the Tampa steamed in closer and the skipper saw what was the matter. A big piece of burlap had been tacked over the name.

The captain of the schooner decided to make a race for the open sea. The ship was under way before the

FIRST UNITED PRESBYTERIAN—800 South Bluff street. Francis J. Scott, minister. Bible school at 9:45; preaching, 11 and 7:45; juniors at 3 o'clock; intermediates and seniors at 6:45. The morning sermon is the second one of a series on the subject, "Why People Love Jesus." He seemed to appreciate people. Nothing seems to make people love us so much as our appreciation of them. Did they love him because He appreciated them? We generally find what we are looking for and when we have found it we have to live with it. Would you not like to hear all of this sermon? Then come to the service. In the evening the message is based on Genesis 5:24. "Enoch walked with God and was not for God took him." What does this Scripture mean? What kind of folks do we go walking with? God walked in the garden in the cool of the evening. What does this mean? You are welcome.

The skill of Mrs. Mason as a musician is well known to church-going people. Evening service at 7:30; subject of sermon, "Play Ball." The American national game of baseball affords the finest diversion to the "fan," and the greatest, cleanest sport to the participant, of any pastime known to the world. The fact that corruption has sometimes found its way into the great game is no good reason for discrediting the institution itself. The same objection could be urged against every other sport, and it does against the most serious activities of life. In this national game may be seen a portrait of American character. Whether you mean to be or not, you are in the picture. Whether at base or at battery, in the field, or at the bat, you are in the game. Even in the "bleachers" your spiritual profile may be traced. "Play ball."

Cannibals File Their Teeth Why Do You?

WHY USE HARMFUL, GRINDING, GRITTY PREPARATIONS FOR CLEANING YOUR TEETH?

Cannibals inhabiting the South Sea Isles still file their teeth—continuing a custom often found among savage people. You, too, in these modern times have been literally filing the precious enamel off your teeth. Why use antiquated methods of cleaning your teeth when science now shows you the ideal way? It is no wonder that sensitive teeth are prevalent and diseases of the mouth are increasing at an alarming rate.

In the past there has been no help for this. The dangerous enamel plaque on the teeth had to be removed even at the expense of the enamel. Today that injurious method is no longer necessary. At the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, has been discovered and perfected by Dr. C. C. Vogt, a research chemist, a dentifrice called Mu-Sol-Dent, which cleans the teeth safely through its power of dissolving the slimy deposits.

Think of it! No scouring or grinding, resulting in sensitive teeth and torn and bleeding gums. No harming of the delicate tissues of the mouth, no wearing away of the enamel. Clinical tests have shown that the formation of tartar is prevented, that the irritation of the gums due to the presence of hard deposits disappear, and the bleeding tender gums become firm and healthy. Start using Mu-Sol-Dent today.

COKER INDEPENDENTS MEET MALONES TODAY

By James M. Discolli
Sporting Editor

The Connellsville Independents expect to do "big things" at Fayette Field this afternoon. Whether permitting when they play the Malones according to a statement by the management last night. The men behind the team are ones who like to win and will demand victories from their players.

The Malones are coming here strong this afternoon. In the game of the Mount Braddock hotel, duty for the Cokers this season, is to win, any of them will find it difficult to find his outliners.

If the game scheduled for this afternoon comes off without the elements interfering it will be the first outliners in the city since Tuesday. Both City and Church Leagues have been held up by the rainy weather and the outlook this morning was not very bright.

The Malones have been sailing without many calms since the season opened. Winning games by big margins. Local fans cannot see where there is any apparent weakness in the Cokers, the only needed thing being a few more games together to season the outfit. By Memorial Day when Connellsville meets the Homestead Grays in a morning and afternoon games the team should be stepping a snappy pace and no club was ever more desirous of beating the Cokers, who have always gone away from here in previous years winners.

Ball games were not the only ones postponed by the bad weather. Tennis fans have been returning off the courts because of the overclouded clouds.

Connellsville's entire population of horseshoe pitchers, will be present at the First Presbyterian pitching grounds adjacent to the State Armory next Monday evening to see the marvel pitcher Davis hanging up his ringers. He makes them time after time and seemingly without effort. He will also give the Little League teams instruction in the game.

Bobo Ruth King of the Swat, Yankee ball player who has been idle so far this season because of a sentence imposed on him by Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball for tampering following the world series games last fall in violation of a rule which prohibits players participating in the world series from making such tours was to don his uniform and take his place in the line-up today for the first time this season when St. Louis plays the New York Americans at the Polo Grounds. At the same time Bob Meiser, another star player also idle on the same sentence was to be permitted to get back into the game with the Yankees.

The Giants and Pirates will again endeavor to clinch the pennant this afternoon. Three games have already been postponed on account of the wet weather and if the teams are able to get on the diamond today at least one game of the series will be played.

Indoor sports have been the chief amusement in the city since Tuesday. The result should be a big crowd at this afternoon's game at Fayette Field.

Cloth Satisfaction

The first step taken in the successful manufacture of men's ready-to-wear clothing is the procuring of good fabrics. This is not only the first step but the most important, for no amount of clever designing and careful tailoring or elaborate finishing can redeem a suit from mediocrity when the material is cheap and coarse.

Many a manufacturer of suits of poor material attempts to sell his product by merit of class and swag and graceful lines alone—and he may succeed for a time.

But no reputation for dependable merchandise and fair dealing was ever built upon so flimsy a foundation. The dealer in men's clothing who is new in the game can not afford to patronize such a manufacturer because he has a business to build up and the sale of this class of goods would only serve as a sure preventative of a second call from a customer.

On the other hand the established merchant will not handle such clothing because the reputation he has gained from years of satisfactory service has been too hard-earned and is too valuable to be so easily lost. Purchase your clothing from a reliable dealer and be sure that you are not the ultimate sufferer from the ignorance of "read" of the manufacturer of inferior goods.

The responsible suit merchant is as particular as to the grade of cloth in the merchandise he sells as he is in knowing the honesty of his cashier. Know a Man by His Clothier.

GOLFERS NOW DESIRE MORE USEFUL PRIZES

Silver Cup Trophies Are Rapidly Going Out of Style.

Persistent Tournament Winners Have Long Since Ceased to Administer Members of That Kind—Even as Has Big Collection.

Silver cups as golf trophies are fast going out of vogue according to all versantists, who say that the demand among the golfers for prizes has turned to more useful articles since the day of red jackets and red caps on the links has passed. There is still a goodly demand for cups among golfers who win events only occasionally but the persistent tournament winners have long since ceased to prize a silver cup that can only be added to a large number of previously won similar trophies.

Two years ago Stewart Stickney of St. Louis who has won a barrel full of cups during his golfing career arranged the prize lists at the Trans-Mississippi championship held over the links of the St. Louis Country Club so that watches and other useful jewelry took the place of

JIM O'CONNELL SAYS NOTORIETY OF SALE WON'T INJURE PLAYING

At the Right Jimmy O'Connell, the $75,000 Beauty and With Him Willie Kamm Who "Guise to Bring Even More Cash into the San Francisco Club Owners' Safe When He Is Sold This Year."

Notoriety of the purchase of Jimmy O'Connell for $75,000 by the New York Giants from the San Francisco Giants has a different psychological effect on various players. Every one believes that the attention attracted to O'Connell through the sale will make an undesirable "bargain" from the bleachers. O'Connell himself says he expects to "but it won't bother me." On the other hand Willie Kamm another brilliant star of the San Francisco team who is considered next in line to follow O'Connell as the number one big purchase price, says he would not like to be an O'Connell clone and that such a sale would hinder him. Kamm's son, who is a minor league player, says he would not want to be sold like his father. "I know I'm not a star and I haven't $75,000 so what's the use? I'd rather be a minor league player than a star who is sold like my father. I know my father is a part of the baseball profession and with a fifteen gets a certain amount of it then he does not pay any more attention to it. I got my share after the Chicago Cubs paid $100,000 for me before I had played a year in the Coast League and for a while it bothered me."

On the other hand Kamm shows an altogether different feeling. He says: "I think O'Connell is a marked player and will be for some time to come. Personally I would not like to be in his place. The fans will undoubtedly expect to watch from him and he makes a best of failure to some extent in a pinch. This surely will give him a good deal. It is all very well to say that their abuse does not bother you but it does all the same. I hope when I am sold that it will be for an ordinary sum lacking in the national eye of it. That O'Connell received. It may be all right for him but that does not help a player's personal feelings in the matter. I know when a man climbs the ladder and into fame he is more or less a public character but I don't want to climb any $75,000 ladder."

CARIBOU MAY PROVE TO BE TOO NUMEROUS

Official in Alaska Thinks Bounty on Wolves There Would Be Dangerous.

Caribou are so numerous in the region around Ruby, Alaska where the Arctic circle crosses the territory, that if the wolves were suddenly exterminated, the present population of Alaska could not eat the surplus and the country would soon be overrun with these wild and forest deer.

This is the opinion of Carl E. Sundstrom, United States commissioner at Ruby.

According to Sundstrom the caribou are now off for the northern summer feeding grounds. The migration from their winter quarters south of the Churchill river to the tundra and barrens began unusually early this year because of a mild winter. The northern trek of these animals means to the Alaskan that spring is at hand.

The Alaskan official when asked concerning the reports of immense herds of caribou moving up and down the country twice each year, declared the numbers are not exaggerated. Real deaths of Ruby last fall were awakened when the movement southward passed a few miles east of that place by the thousands, some of so many sharp horns upon the frozen earth. The valleys and hills are often black with moving masses of caribou.

Wolves now destroy more caribou than sportsmen or meat hunters by killing the calves. The deer are profitable and it is the opinion of Sundstrom and many other Northerners that a heavy bounty on Alaskan wolves and caribou would increase not only caribou herds but numbers of deer, moose and mountain sheep and goats.

The Big Muskeg

by VICTOR ROUSSEAU

Illustrations by R.H. Livingstone

But this was not the way to Cold Junction. This led toward Chain of Lakes, where several fishing clubs had purchased ground and water rights and set up camps. Her heart sank. She caught at Hackett's arm.

"Where are you taking us?" she pleaded. "Won't you let us go back? I'll say nothing if you let us go—I'll say nothing!"

Hackett grinned at her and tried to put his arm about her. She struck out

"Bring her in!" He yelled to Hackett, at him, and with an oath, he pushed her back violently into the bottom of the rig.

She gathered all her courage to wait. And the waiting was not long. The upland was surmounted, and a lake came into sight, a neck of land, and the dark outlines of camp buildings upon it. A light showed in a window. Chambers pulled up the horses.

He leaped to the ground and, catching McDonald by the arm, pulled him roughly out of the vehicle. He hammered fiercely upon the door, which opened. Tom Sawyer appeared on the threshold. The factor began to tremble. Sawyer pulled him unceremoniously inside.

"Bring her in!" He yelled to Hackett. The outlaw caught Molly by the wrist and swung her to the ground. She tried to break from him, but Sawyer, having thrust McDonald inside, snatched her from Hackett's grasp and, picking her up bodily, carried her into the lighted room.

Sawyer deposited the girl on the divan, went out and pushed McDonald in after her. Outside Molly heard a fierce altercation in progress—Sawyer's threatening tones, Hackett's sullen answers and Lee Chambers' querulous whine.

Presently the two men went out and Molly heard the horses being led away. She tried to adjust her torn dress, to fasten up her hair. Sawyer came back.

"Now we'll have a few words to gether," he said, looking at Molly.

CHAPTER XIII.

Wilton carried the dead man into his room and laid the body on the bed. His face was set like flint. In this he exacted the work of Sawyer; but the tool, Lee Chambers, was the object of his immediate vengeance.

Before anything else he must discover the motive of the burglary.

He opened the safe, which he had shut, and went through the papers very deliberately. He was astonished to find that everything appeared intact and just as he had left it.

Wilton could not understand it. He tried to figure it out. He had already come to the conclusion that the fire had been started with the purpose of driving him away from the place. The burglary was being committed. But why had it failed? And what had Chambers been after?

He must have known that there was no money in the safe. The men's pay came up monthly by special messenger and was handed out the same evening. It would arrive on the Monday. Chambers could not have been after spoil of that kind.

Wilton looked through Joe's papers again. Everything seemed intact, and nothing had even been tampered with. It must have been done by the victor right after the murder.

Suddenly, Andersen came running across the smoking ground, followed by some half-dozen of the engineers. The foreman came panting up to the door of the shack.

"The men are crazy drunk, Mr. Carruthers, and they're planning to attack the office!" he gasped. "Somebody's been telling them the safe's full of money and that they're going to be laid off because of the fire."

Wilton reflected a moment, while the engineers gathered anxiously about him.

"They can't open the safe," said Wilton. "At least, there's only one man can, and he's been at it already. He never lifted what I mean! I don't want bloodshed. I'll open it and show it to them." He turned to one of the engineers. "Take four men with you and hurry to the store and see that no harm comes to Mike McDonald and his father," he ordered. "And take Mike," he added, picking the revolver out of the drawer and handing it to him.

"You'd better come too, Mr. Carruthers," the man suggested.

"No, I'll stay here," said Wilton. "Hurry!"

The engineer picked four men and they hurried down the hill. Andersen and two others remained with Wilton. Hardly had the party left when the mob came streaming out of the bunk houses toward the office, shouting and yelling.

Seeing the four men standing in the doorway, however, they hesitated to rush them, probably in the belief that they were armed, and stood off, cursing them.

"Speak up!" shouted Wilton. "What is it you men want?"

The shouts died away to a muttering. A spokesman stepped forward.

"We want the money in the safe, and we'll have it!" he shouted. "We all know you set the fire because the lines busted, and you've got the safe chock-full of money. You've worked as like dogs all summer, and now you're going to lay us off because the company's busted. You'd better hand it over."

Evidently somebody had been telling the men that tale. Wilton was anxious to try peaceful methods.

"There's no money in the safe," he answered. "Send a deputation of three men and you can examine it."

The Hunkies, who for the most part understood him very well, looked at one another uncertainly. They were as docile as lambs without leadership. But they had a leader; the outlaw Tongway stepped forward out of the crowd.

"Come along, boys, he's fooling you!" he yelled. "Shove his head for him! Give them what's coming to them!"

But he slunk back into their midst as the bellowing mob rushed forward. Wilton noticed that he was fingering a revolver in his coat pocket. He waited till the mob was close upon the shack. He had calculated that an instant's hesitation would follow, seized it and sprang into their midst, striking out right and left and felling a drunken laborer at every blow. As Tongway fumbled desperately with the trigger of the weapon in his pocket, Wilton dealt him a smashing blow that knocked him stone-dead. He stooped, took the revolver and turned and faced his assailants.

"Now, men," he said crisply. "I've told you that you shall examine the safe, and I'll keep my word. Three of you enter. The rest will wait outside."

After a pause three of the workmen came forward uncertainly. Wilton took them inside the shack, opened the safe door and took out the contents, package by package.

"Satisfied there's no money?" he asked.

"I guess that's so," admitted the leader of the mob reluctantly.

"Then get out," said Wilton, driving them toward the door.

The three rejoined their companions and, with sullen mutterings, the workmen lurching away aimlessly, and totally unable to unite on any further plan for aggression now that their leader was gone. Andersen and one of the engineers picked up Tongway and brought him into the shack. The man was still unconscious. However, he showed signs of coming to shortly.

"Julius is dead," said Wilton quietly. "Julius dead?" shouted Andersen. "Murdered. It was Lee Chambers. He must have been hanging round the camp. He got into the safe, too, but was scared away before he took anything. Come inside!"

At the sight of the dead man on the bed Andersen swore softly.

"He must have been with those two liquor peddlers," said Andersen. "I guess they set the fire, all right."

"I guess they did," said Wilton. "And I want you to go on to the next camp and telephone in to Clayton and get the police up here right away."

"I don't, Mr. Carruthers," said Andersen. "You see, just as soon as the fire began I seen that gasoline on the engine sheds. And I'd heard the men talking, because I picked up a little of their language. I knew there was trouble coming, and I phoned Mr. Quinn. He said he'd get an engine and come right up with some of his men."

"Well done!" said Wilton. "We'll have this man for them, at any rate."

Tongway stirred, muttered and suddenly sat up on the floor, looking at his captors in bewilderment. Wilton quietly took the revolver out of his pocket and walked toward him.

"I'm going to ask you a few questions, Tongway," he remarked in a casual tone. "You'll find it to your advantage to answer them. Who sent you here?"

Tongway broke into a short laugh. "You think dey tell that to me?" he sneered. "Jim Hackett don't tell me nothings. He say you got de job—you do it!"

"You came with Hackett; but what was the game? You were told to sell liquor round the camp and make the workmen drunk and discontented. I guess you have an idea whom you were working for, besides Jim Hackett, eh, Tongway?"

"Maybe I do," muttered the outlaw. "I guess you shoot me unless I say Mr. Sawyer, eh?"

The parry was effective. "You came here with Hackett and Lee Chambers to fire the camp," said Wilton. "Lee Chambers' job was to steal papers from the safe while we were fighting the fire. You were going to meet somewhere afterward. Where was it?"

The man burst into scornful laughter. "You don't bluff me," he jeered. "I guess you don't want to be charged with another murder, eh?"

"Do you?" asked Wilton.

"How's dat? You don't fix no murder on me!"

"Come here!" said Wilton, taking him by the arm and leading him to the door of the bedroom.

The moon, sloping in the west, threw a flood of light on the white face of Julius, showing the crushed skull and Tongway screamed and started away. the blood-clots that stalled the pillow. Tongway screamed and started away, but Wilton held him fast.

"What you want to know?" babbled the outlaw.

"Where were you three going to meet afterward?"

"In de clubhouse of de fishing camp at Chain of Lakes, twelve miles south," growled Tongway, slinking back against the wall.

"That's where we'll find them," said Andersen.

Wilton handed him the revolver. "You'll guard your prisoner, and hand him over to the police when they arrive," he said.

Then he saw men running toward the shack and stepped outside. It was the party whom he had sent to the portage.

"They're gone!" panted one of them.

"Gone? What do you mean?" shouted Wilton.

"Miss McDonald saw the factor. They went to bed last night. Now, they're not there. There's been foul work done, and a fight. Her room is all in confusion, the bedclothes dragged into the stove, a pitcher smashed to pieces."

Anderson pulled at Wilton's sleeve. "Well, catch the horses at the muskeg," he said. "You stay here. It's our job, sir."

"No, it's my job, Andersen," answered Wilton, "and, by G—d, I'll be a thorough one!"

Spring Lingeries.

If you are making spring lingerie there are several new touches that are daintily charming. On crepe de chine underwear satin ribbon an inch wide is cut diamond shape, so that there are two pointed and two round edges. The tip of one "diamond" is lightly tacked to such wearables as gowns and negligees. Half a dozen sewed across the front flatter like flowers. Ribbon, either to match or contrast, is effective, while lavender and pale blue is particularly pretty. On duty wash lingerie, made of sheer striped material, plain bands of lavender organdy are seen to shape the top and form shoulder straps.

A Hat for a Tweed.

To wear a suitable hat with a tweed or homespun costume is to make or utterly mar that costume. Straws with tweeds are not considered the thing, for the one-color tout ensemble must be preserved. The matching tweed hat serves a purpose, but may be abandoned with the approach of warm weather and sunshine.

The hat made of wools or wool blends is the appropriate thing. Woven two-tone and three-tone effects combining wool and straw blends cleverly imitate the tweed effect, and may be abandoned with the approach of warm weather and sunshine.

The Stand-Up Collar.

Many spring tunic dresses have little neck-collars set round shallow oval necks. These do not meet in the front and are often fastened with a narrow black watered ribbon cravat in a stiff Victorian loop-and-knot. A rather striking arrangement is to make the collar of an entirely different material or the same material as the dress, but vertically striped with bands of ribbon or silk or a contrasting color. But this striped must not be used elsewhere on the dress or the effect is lost.

A Taffeta Frock.

New jaunty ways to trim the spring taffeta frock are hand effects of ribbon or velvet. Graduated black velvet or alternate narrow widths are pretty on blue taffeta, while colored ribbon, an inch or half-inch wide, in rich rainbow or orange and lemon shades makes a striking effect on a brown taffeta. Skirts and bell sleeves are thus decorated.

Children in Spring Time.

Mrs. C. Osborn, 7312 Hillside Rd., Cleveland, O., writes: "My granddaughter was troubled with a cough for nearly two years. She took Foley's Honey and Tar and her cough is now gone. It loosened the phlegm so she could raise it easily." Foley's Honey and Tar is just what children should have for feverish colds, coughs, "sneezes" and light, wheezy breaths.

Be sure to get Foley's. It checks cough and whooping cough, too. Sold everywhere.—Advertisement

LATE PARIS HATS

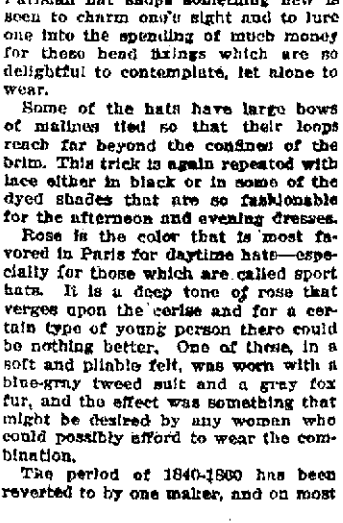

Headgear for New Season Must Be Large, Makers Say.

For Younger Girls There Are Many Models Trimmed With Springs of Flowers.

The Parisian insists that the hat of the new season must be large. That even if it is a small hat, it is still large, which sounds like a paradox, but which is so, nevertheless. The small hats have larger contours. They are more ample—not held so closely to the head.

Of course, observes an authority, the French hat is not an easy matter to describe. It is an elusive thing without so very much that is conspicuously notable about it, but with so much subtlety and so much charm that its description becomes something to study in the color that is most favored in Paris for daytime hats—especially for those which are called sport hats. It is a deep tone of rose that verges upon the coral and for a certain type of young person there could be nothing better. One of these, in a soft and pliable felt, was worn with a blue-gray tweed suit and a gray fur, and the effect was something that might be desired by any woman who could possibly afford to wear the combination.

The period of 1840-1860 has been reverted to by one maker, and on most of his hats there will be found encasings of lace falling down at either side of the face to touch the shoulders and even to fall below that point.

Another has chosen to accompany many of his hats with little soft and pliable hats made of the same material as the suit. Often they are em-

DARWIN declared that the human race was merely an evolution of the monkey tribe. Some people agree with him. Others do not.

But there is no denying that even within the memory of most of us, there has been considerable of an evolution in the human mode of living. And today, this evolution is buzzing along faster than ever.

There has never been a time when conditions changed so rapidly—when life bettered itself so consistently. New comforts and conveniences are coming in all the time. And the rapidity with which they are invented and put before us vitally affects us all.

To take advantage of these things, you must keep yourself informed. You must know not only what they are, but also how much they cost and where and how to get them.

Majestic, World's Largest Ship, Makes Maiden Voyage

The New White Star Liner, as Large as 400 Houses, Compared with a Liner of Twenty-five Years Ago

THE world's largest ship, the Majestic, a passenger liner of 56,000 tons, left Southampton May 10 for New York on her maiden voyage. Ordinary folks on shore find it hard to realize the size of this last and greatest addition to the world's fleet. She is five times as large as the average big ocean steamship of 25 years ago, while her tonnage is as great as that of all the 132 ships in the historic Spanish Armada of 1588. Her interior space equals that of 400 ordinary 3-room houses, and she has 1,245 staterooms, besides great public rooms two stories high. Her length is 956 feet, her breadth 100 feet, and she is 102 feet deep from the captain's bridge to the keel.

The Majestic's weight is 64,000 tons. If she were to hit an object when going only at five miles an hour the blow delivered would be equal to that of 14,500 Ford cars. Her horse power is 100,000, and her speed more than 23 knots, or nearly 30 statute miles an hour. She has capacity for 4,700 passengers and carries a crew of 1,000.

Pershing Praises Social Hygiene Board's Fight on Vice

Results of the government war on vice as carried on by the U. S. Interdepartmental Social Hygiene Board to protect the health of the men in uniform show that 83 red light districts have been shut up in various cities in the past two years. In the last six months, the report, just made public, shows the vice districts have been closed in Norfolk, Va.; Pensacola, Fla.; Columbus, Ga.; Vallejo and Los Angeles, Cal.; and Camden, N. J. Disorderly resorts have been closed in Baltimore, Md.; Carlisle, Pa.; Cincinnati, Ohio; and Washington, D. C.

The results have lowered the disease rates in the army and navy from 91 to 62 per 1,000 men per year. The money saving to the government, saved through having to treat fewer men, is placed at $1,118,600 for this past year.

Secretary of War Weeks and General Pershing have both praised the U. S. Interdepartmental Social Hygiene Board for its excellent work in lowering social disease rates and improving the health of the men in the army.

"The importance of this work," General Pershing, "can be realized when you know that social diseases constitute the main source of work for the medical branch of the army in peace time. I am particularly pleased with the showing made at Camp Benning, Georgia, where the rate has been lowered from 149 to 27 per 1,000 men."

The secretary of the board, Dr. Valeria H. Parker, urges that more attention be paid by parents and in schools to teaching children the correct facts on sex.

"Children learn these facts anywhere," said Dr. Parker, "and they learn them in the worst manner possible. Frequently their facts are entirely wrong. This leads to much trouble among both boys and girls and is responsible for much delinquency in the youth of the nation. Much suffering, misery and unhappiness will be eliminated, if parents will face these facts bravely and not try to dodge the responsibility."

Women's clubs all over the country are urging the continuance of the war on vice. No appropriation has yet been granted by Congress.

DRESSES FOR LITTLE GIRLS

Tan-Colored Cotton Gown and Pink Crepe de Chine Fashioned Into Chic Models.

An unusually pretty little dress for a child of four, seen recently, was made of tan-colored heavy cotton crepe. The yoke and sleeves were attached to the dress proper by means of crocheting done in brown wool. The hem was cut apart from the skirt and then fastened back with the crocheting. A simple notch was used so that the general effect was that of hem-sitting done with wool hair.

A clever party dress for a small girl, shown by the same designer, was of pale pink crepe de chine, made on simple lines. The sleeves were ruffled almost to the shoulder with half-inch dainty white lace and the same trimming was used about the skirt and bloomers. With this dress was worn a plain taffeta hat with a dower streamer at one side. The crown and upper brim were covered entirely with narrow taffeta or scalloped, so that a flower petal effect was suggested.

CAPE FOR DRESS OCCASIONS

Bright Color and Pastel Taffeta Are Popular for Garments for Evening Wear.

In the cape models for evening wear bright color and pastel taffetas are popular. These are usually quite full and wrap about the figure almost shawl fashion. The collar may be of such in matching shade or a full, self-fringed "mole" of the taffeta may form a collar.

Black silk or silk overwraps, lined with bright color silk, are also popular. A number of these dark-colored models have deep, wide vests of self fabric, sometimes stitched or braided.

Daytime wraps run to both flared and straight-line models. The widely circular cape, made of round material hollowed out for the neck and slit down the front or side, is among the striking models, these often appearing in sport fabric.

For formal afternoon occasions there is a long time blouse of Spanish lace, with wrist length flowing sleeves tucked at the bottom. The lower section of the blouse is split almost up to the hips, and all the edges are piped.

BY-PRODUCT COKE MADE GAIN APRIL DESPITE STRIKE

Total 2,227,000 Tons, an Increase of Eight Per Cent Over March.

BEEHIVE IS 528,000 TONS

But Still Above 1931 Average; Monthly Consumption of Coal for Coke Making Nearly 1,000,000 Tons Greater; Requirements 57% of War Time.

Despite the coal strike the output of by-product coke increased again in April, says the monthly report of the United States Geological Survey. The total production for the month was 2,227,000 net tons, an average of 74,244 tons per day. In comparison with the daily average for March, this was an increase of eight per cent. The month's production even exceeded the monthly average for any year prior to 1930.

The production was 60.7 per cent of the aggregate capacity of the ovens. Of the 71 plants in existence, 58 were active during the month, and 13 idle. These statistics are based upon reports from 59 plants and include estimates for the three plants not heard from at the time of publication.

The cut in production of beehive coke caused by the strike was, however, such as to bring about a decrease in the total output of all coke. It is estimated that 528,000 tons of beehive coke were drawn during the month. The total production of coke was therefore 2,755,000 tons, as against 2,850,000 in March.

The monthly average production of by-product and beehive coke during the past five years and the past three months, has been as follows in net tons:

Average By-product	Beehive	Total
1931	1,870,000	2,784,000
1930	1,876,000	2,640,000
1929	2,046,000	2,638,000
1928	2,056,000	2,740,000
1927	1,950,000	2,600,000
1926	1,735,000	2,400,000
Mar 1932	1,876,000	2,638,000
Apr 1932	2,227,000	2,755,000

Assuming a yield in merchantable coke of 69.6 per cent of the coal charged in by-product ovens and 73.4 per cent in beehive ovens, the estimated consumption of coal for the manufacture of coke has been as follows during the past five years and the past three months:

Average By-product	Beehive	Total
1931	2,722,000	4,251,000
1930	2,702,000	4,083,000
1929	2,588,000	3,979,000
1928	2,684,000	4,006,000
1927	2,529,000	3,860,000
1926	2,479,000	3,650,000
Mar 1932	2,671,000	4,226,000
Apr 1932	3,200,000	4,931,000

Would Appoint Receivers for Closed Mines

Representative Huddelson of Alabama, who is a member of the labor group in Congress has introduced a bill under the provisions of which a federal district court judge would be authorized to appoint a receiver for a mining company which closed its mine when market or other conditions did not warrant its operation.

The bill directs the Interstate Commerce Commission to allocate and apportion to each mine used for the production of coal or to each operator of a group of such mines a just proportion of the cars suitable for transporting coal which may belong to or be in the possession of any carrier engaged in interstate commerce from which such mine or mine operator may under existing law require such allocation shall be made annually as nearly as may be and shall be based upon finding as to capacity of such mine or mines quality of product and such other factors as may relate to the public welfare. Upon such allocation being made it shall be the duty of said carrier to supply said coal as provided by such allocation and for any failure of such duty the carrier shall be liable to a fine.

No matter what circumstances compelled a mine to cease production of coal for interstate commerce the proposed act would make it mandatory upon the district court of the United States for the district in which the mine is situated to appoint a receiver for the property upon the petition of the attorney general.

It is further provided that "subject to the direction of the court the receiver so appointed shall operate the said mine and property for the production of coal until the release and restoration thereof to the possession of the person, firm, or corporation entitled to such possession shall be directed by the attorney general or until such person, firm, or corporation so entitled to possession shall reasonably satisfy the court having jurisdiction of the proceeding that operation of said mine will be proceeded with as released and restored."
